

“Heartless” Haughton?

One of the features found in the most desirable and sought-after villages is a recognisable heart or central feature – it can enhance the feeling of belonging and bring a real sense of identity

Sadly, we have no real focal point in our long narrow village – perhaps the closest we come to a centre is the oddly shaped car park by the village hall

New village centrepiece?

- Why not add something that both locals and visitors can identify with the village?
- Somewhere dry and safe to pause, chat and watch the world go by – for all of us, young and old.
- Perhaps like this Gazebo/Butter Cross on the raised green next to the village hall?

Other ideas?

- How about an artistic feature/mural on the new wall by the butchers?
- Do YOU have any other ideas to give our village a facelift?
- If so, tell us on the feedback form

Our proposal: to promote the development of a new central feature next to the village hall
